لِلْجَنْسِيَّةِ إِلَى ۱۲ ۱۲
Citizenship Duality in Jordan Law: A Comparative Study Between Arabian Laws

Prepared by Mohannad Khalid Al-Sarayrah

Supervised by Prof. Mohammed Mahasneh

ABSTRACT

The study deals with the citizenship duality in Jordanian Law, due to the importance of nationality (citizenship), because it is the tool of distributing people geographically, it distinguishes between citizens and foreigners, and it is the reference in determining the applicable laws in solving laws conflicts.

Citizenship organizing must be done according to accurate bases to prevent and avoid disturbances and disorders in relations between individuals and countries. Because of that, the bases of citizenship is submitted to the willing and desires of the national project, and to the weakness of international laws, that leads to the differences in organizing citizenship in different countries, which create a state of troubles and difficulties in granting citizenship, and made cases of citizenship duality, that may create difficulties and burden over the individuals and disorders between countries.

The study then identified the citizenship duality, shows its advantages and disadvantages, its reasons and the ways of preventing it nationally and internationally, and the political effects of citizenship duality.

Then the study investigated the cases on citizenship duality the efforts of the Jordanian legislate in avoiding citizenship duality and the cases that was not avoided. Then the study was concluded with some recommendations.